

I have received word that you would like to do away with the Telephone Privacy Act. I for one am against you doing that. It has been so peaceful without the solicitors calling every day. My husband works third shift and they used to wake him up during the day. Now he gets his sleep and is much happier. There are telephone books printed if we decide to purchase something. We do not need these businesses calling everyday to pitch a sales tactic on something we don't need or don't want. Thank you for your time.
